IN MEMORIAM

In memory of E. Kinckle Martin, who died five years ago this 3rd of December.
Upright and just in all your ways,
Loyal and true through all the days.
Silently suffered, patiently bore,
God took you home to suffer no more,
Only your vacant chair and the memory of the happiness we once knew,
But the love that kindles memorys torch
Will feed it my whole life through
Sadly missed by his wife and children. 12-5-1p

Let's Wipe Out Polio!

APPOMATTOX County has an opportunity seldom before presented in the community . . . to take another step toward completely eliminating polio-

Since the introduction of the Salk vaccine in 1955, the incidence of polio has dropped sharply. But further progress in the incidence of this crippling disease is now within our reach.

By giving our polio frum our community good, the Lions Club in cooperation with the Lynchburg Academy of Medicine has organized a drive to obtain Oral Polio vaccine to all residents of Appomattox county. The Sabin vaccine required no injection. It need only be swallowed. The vaccine will be administered on Sunday from noon to 5 p.m., at the Appomattox cannery, Pamplin cannery, and Oakville Elementary School.

We urge all citizens of our community to get behind this push to help wipe out polio. Let's show that when we are given the opportunity to do something for ourselves, for our families, and for our neighbors, we are not too apathetic or uncaring to do it.

Red Harrassment

The U. S. Army convoy was fired on the Berlin autobahn just after signing of the wheat sale between the United States and Soviet Union, State Department officials explained that it was probably a mixup on the local level.

Personnel in Berlin, after the [illegible] expressed a contrary view, claiming U. S. members of the convoy looked for over forty hours, and the communist maneuver apparently planned from start to finish.

The communists blocked convoy. This should end the [illegible]up angle and excuse once and for all, especially since Nikita Khrushchev commented on the incident a day after halting of the convoy was announced to humiliate the United States army and demonstrate to the world that the United States is at mercy—in Berlin.

Also to be the beginning of something more serious. The Russians may begin halting convoys for long time in an effort to harass U. S. and Allied forces in West Berlin. If they halt convoys for days, they can then tighten the stranglehold on Berlin.

United States must be prepared for a showdown, in which some lives might be lost. This is a hard decision, but any further surrender to communist bullying on the autobahn could fatally compromise our rights and ability to supply the two million West Berliners and the Allied garrisons there.

Regroup The Addends

We wonder how many of our readers can understand this sentence:

"The commutative and associative properties of addition permit us to change the order and regroup the addends."

The word came off a printed arithmetic blank issued to the third grade of a Charleston, S. C. public school.

Children must be smarter these days. We give up.

The world is now faced with the question whether freedom is to prevail or not.

Praised By God

Lesson for December 8, 1963

Even the most conceited person is not satisfied with his own opinion of himself. We all like to be liked. There is nothing wrong about praise, nothing wrong about the pleasure there is in being praised. A danger lurks here, to be sure. It is all too easy to take flattery for sincere commendation. It is easy to forget that, for the most part, "praise is like perfumery, meant to be smelt, not to be swallowed." Nevertheless, the disheartening to work hard without a word of praise — to give the best one has to a piece of work only to find that nobody cares about it one way or the other. At this point we should ask ourselves: Am I making life's burden heavier for some one just by keeping my mouth shut? Am I too tight about saying a good word for others? Could a word from me be the very thing to keep someone from despair?

Commending Myself

Nobody loves a braggart. Great and good men have sometimes been called on to defend what they have done, and so in simply recounting what they have been doing and accomplishing they may give the impression of bragging. Even Jesus and Paul run into this. Jesus made it quite clear that he did not mean to praise himself, and so it was with Paul. The Apostle mixes with his own story, as he told it, a good many apologies for sounding like a boaster. He leaned over backwards to keep from commending himself. It is easy to see why I am not the best judge of my own actions. I am always prejudiced in my own favor — that is an almost universal human weakness. So my good opinion of myself does'n't count. True, I have to live with myself, and I do need a good conscience (and Paul expressed this at various times); but if the only good opinion of me is my own, I'd better stop and think about myself all over again.

Praise From Others

Consider the important part played by praise, sincere commendation, in the lives of most people. Little children hear it from their mothers and are the better for it. They learn to walk and talk because some one gives them a smile and a "big hand" for those first little efforts at toddling or prattling. Children at school like to come home with a good report card. They may be much more interested in what mom or dad think of that card than in what the teacher thought. A good home, it has been said, is a mutual admiration society. Especially, falling in love brings this out. The praise of the loved one is exaggerated: each may love the other for qualities that aren't really there. Yet love is such a miracle worker that the praise of a loved one may bring out qualities and graces which, without that praise, might never have been awakened.

Recommended by God

You won't get any argument on the proposition: The commendation of God himself is more than worth all that a man can say of himself or his friends can say about him. Where the argument starts, is on how we can know it is God's commendation. Again Jesus and his disciple Paul have much the same answer. By their fruits you shall know them, said Jesus. God does not have to send down a horticultural expert to tack a label on a tree: THIS IS A FIG TREE, (Signed: The Almighty.) No, if it bears figs and the figs are good, you don't need to have God's recommendation spelled out. The tree speaks for itself, by its fruit. In the same vein, Paul in defending himself from his numerous critics, points to what he has been doing and how he has been doing it, as evidence that God has approved him and his work. If the question still haunts anyone, What does God in his infinite wisdom think of me? one straight answer is: Are you doing the kind of things Jesus did? God's main work in this world is to draw men to himself. Does my life, what you are and do, bring others a bit closer to God? Are you making God credible?

TIMES-VIRGINIA, Editor
Appomattox, Va.
Dear Mr. Vaughan,

I would like space enough if I may to inform the readers, that our Piney Ridge correspondent is a young man of 17, (Ray Webber). I dare say very few people know this outside our community. Each week, he reads his news column with a verse of Scripture. Knowing him, personally this seems to me Rays testimony.

May we always, give our young people the encouragement and support, they so richly deserve.

Sincerely,
Mrs. R. C. Beale.

Pastor Speaks

TO MINISTER OR TO BE MINISTERED UNTO' — that is the question? What is the mark of true greatness? How is is to be measured— Is it to occupy places of power or authority. Is it to give direction to others. Or is it to serve our fellowman. Actually, true greatness originates in humility. Commenting upon Jesus' Ministry some one has adeptly stated: "It is the magnificance of service.'

When our Lord confronted Simon Peter and the other disciples about humble service, Simon protested that Jesus should wash their feet (a custom observed in line with hospitality when one entered the home as guest). Christ was not only symbolizing an example of humility in service but it was his best way to do this act of service. This is characteristic of our Lord— He came to minister, to serve. (Jno. 13:1-17)

Jesus said to Simon 'If I wash you not, thou hast no part with me'. Jesus means to keep his kingdom pure and in the right perspective. He let it be known that we cannot serve him unless we understand and accept this principle. Peter responded as we should respond, 'Lord, not my feet only, but my hands and head.'

We are still under the shadow of a national tragedy, the assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy. Appropriate eulogy and memorials have been affected. Rightly we fly the flag at half-mast for thirty days. What was it that killed our late President? There is no doubt in my mind but that 'hatred' was at the center of whatever motive the assassin had had. The fact that some of the people of our nation can promote 'pockets of hatred' and stir up strife disturbs me no little. It is evident that we want to be served, and that according to our own 'breed of service.' Often we rebel when we are not afforded this kind of service. The late President seemed from my vantage point not to have thought unduly about himself. He knew the risks involved in the high office as President yet he seemed unaware of any desire to protect himself politically or personally.

Our place in the world is that of unselfish service. Many may have the 'legal' right to hold places of leadership without the right motive for service , but surely one does not fulfill the spiritual requirements.

True greatness lies in our humble submission to the will of God in Christ. Then, it means we take upon the kind of activity He engaged in while upon the earth. And we are willing to give our lives, if necessary, to serve our fellow-men in the spirit of humility.

It is my profound hope that the renewal evidenced in the past two weeks will lead us into new dimensions of dedication and service to our Lord and our fellow-man. Attend weekly the church of your choice. It will add purpose and strength to any desire to be a better American and most of all a better Christian.

Week Of Prayer Observed

The Week of Prayer for Foreign Missions will be observed by the Liberty Baptist Womans Missionary Union beginning on Sunday evening, Dec. 8th and will extend through Thursday evening, Dec. 12th. The theme for the week is 'Crown Him Lord Of All.

Mrs. W. E. Jamerson, Prayer Chairman, announces that on Sunday evening at 7 p.m., the pagenta, 'Bring Them In" written by Mrs. Ralph Gwin will be given with members of the various circles taking the chief parts. The Kathleen Jones Circle, Mrs. C. S. Boothe, leader will be leading the program for Monday at 2:30 p.m. with emphasis on the people of the Orient: Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. the Joanna Maiden Circle, with Mrs. William Chenault, leader will present, 'Crown Him Lord, among the peoples of Africa, Europe and the Near East.

The family night of missions will be held on Wednesday evening beginning with a covered dish supper at 6:30. The Brotherhood and all other organizations are planning to have a combined program following the dinner. The Marie Van Lear circle, with Mrs. George Abbitt, Jr., will be leading this evening of worship.

The concluding program will be on Thursday evening at 7:30 with the Hazel Moon circle leading in the theme: "Crown Him among the peoples of Latin America.

The offering goal for the Lottie Moon offering for the WMS is $1,038.79 which represents a 10 per cent increase over last year's gifts.

The church is already the recipient of a gift of $500.00 which is to be given to Foreign Missions but this amount is not included in the above goal.

Mrs. A. R. Harwood, Jr., president, urges all members to set aside this week as a week of rededication in the cause of World Missions which begins as each of our doorsteps.
